About Freeland Disc Golf Course

Disc Golf is a family friendly game created in the 70's and follows many of the classic traditions of golf. Instead of the ball, a disc or Frisbee is used to get to the hole. Unlike traditional golf, Disc golf's objective is to throw your disc into a metal chain linked fence in the fewest amount of throws. The holes themselves are craftily designed to give players challenges. Holes can vary in size and difficulty, some even situated in wooded areas. The game of disc golf is a game for everyone to enjoy no bias on gender, age, or experience. Playing the game is also very economically friendly as discs cost anywhere from $10-$20 and the beginner or average player will only need at most three discs; a driver, mid-range, and a putter.

The biggest disadvantage of the sport is the lack of public knowledge, even though the sport is gaining popularity with the younger generation. The biggest unknown factor for people is where to play the sport. Most disc golf courses are located within township parks, and are either situated in open greens much like a typical golf course or in wooded areas. The typical size of a disc golf course corresponds with the number of holes on the course. For example a nine-hole disc golf course can be established on as little as five acres of land, and a championship-caliber 24-hole course on 30 to 40 acres.

Why should you play the game you may ask? Disc golf is great for any person wanting to stay in good health. Playing the game promotes a combination of physical and mental abilities that allow very little risk of physical injury. Figuring out when to play is easier than expected as a round takes one to two hours to complete according to course size. The quick course completion time gives many people the flexibility to play during the week. So what are you waiting for? Give the sport a try.
